Let's read a story

Hari Singh was a young boy who liked to make new friends, especially the kind he could trick.

One day, he met a kind writer, Anil, and asked him for a job, even though he knew he couldn't cook. Anil, being a trusting person, agreed to let Hari stay and even promised to teach him to read and write. Hari started doing chores for Anil, but he was always looking for a chance to steal from him.

One day, Anil got paid for an article and kept the money under his mattress. That night, Hari crept into Anil's room and took the money. He planned to run away, but then he thought about how good Anil had been to him, teaching him and trusting him. Feeling bad, Hari went back and put the money back under the mattress. The next morning, Anil gave Hari some money and a warm smile, showing he knew what had happened but didn't say anything. Hari felt happy and decided he wanted to be an honest person.
